GOOD BLOOD IS BASIS OF CONTINUED SUCCESS

By J. W. MARCHBANK

With Snooksie Bradley's grandson Richstrike going around the country and performing consistently wherever he is raced, my mind cannot help reverting to the time, thirteen years ago, when I was at Saratoga picking out yearlings for my Heather Farm. I only hope purchasers at the sales to open in a few days at Saratoga will have equally good fortune to mine in selecting young thoroughbreds. One of my first "picks" was a highly finished miss by Rock View, from Russian Sable, with ample scope, as experts say, and I outbid all the others for her. As you have guessed, that was the brown filly to be given the name of Snooksie Bradley.

Time may surely be said to fly when we think that "Snooksie" has not only finished a successful career on the race course—in one event, fans probably will recall she made the mighty Zev stretch his neck—but has been in the breeding paddock long enough to send out sons and daughters with winning ways and now has grandsons, such as Richstrike, making her fame greater and more secure.

The filly was an ideal race mare, of beautiful action and, needless to say, game to the core. Those qualities are manifest in her descendants, too. Richstrike, after starting out in my colors at Santa Anita by showing his heels to good ones, was taken from me through the claiming process and has changed hands since going on his travels to Texas, Maryland, Rhode Island and Massachusetts. He is the type good trainers want and they do not hesitate to put a halter on him, even though entered to be sold for the tidy sum of $2500 and sometimes $3000.

Richstrike is by imported War Cry, from Princess Evol. Snooksie Bradley has gone to the court of King Heather a number of times and Princess Evol was the outcome of one of the visits. Richstrike is brown, the same color as his "grandma." It may be interesting to note that in eighteen outings in his racing career of seven months he has been first or second in exactly half of the races; lately he has been running six furlongs and probably can carry his speed much farther when asked to do it.

There are two things that interest me particularly in the blood lines of Snooksie Bradley. Her sire, Rock View, is closely akin to Man o' War, being by imported Rock Sand, sire of Mahubah, the dam of Man o' War, while Rock View's dam, Golden View, is full sister to Fair Play, sire of Man o' War. The other "angle" is that she is inbred to the famous stallion, Ben d'Or, having three free generations to that winner of the Epsom Derby. Ben d'Or, was one of the handsomest horses that ever lived and conformation is always important.

Meet Merritt A. Vinson, nationally famed producer of outstanding shows and expositions, who has been named general manager of the San Mateo County Garden-Floral Festival, which will be held at Bay Meadows, October 10-13, 1935.

HAVE SELECTED MANAGER FOR COUNTY GARDEN--FLORAL SHOW

Expect Coming Exhibition To Outclass All Past Similar Events

Buckling down to hard work, faced with the realization that the element of time is a most important factor, the officers and executive committee members of the First Annual San Mateo County Garden-Floral Festival on Tuesday evening of last week unanimously selected and appointed Merrit A. Vinson as general manager of this county wide festival, to be held at Bay Meadows, October 10-13, 1935.

George J. Davis, president, on being interviewed, said "Mr. Vinson formerly resided in Cleveland, Ohio, but of recent years has lived in San Leandro, Calif. He has now established his residence in San Mateo County, and is undoubtedly one of the outstanding successful floral and pageant producers in America. The committee feels indeed fortunate in having been able to secure his services for our first county wide festival. His background is replete with color and success. A resume of his achievements reads like a page taken from the diary of that master showman of them all, the late beloved David Belasco. Just a few of Vinson's successful artistic and cultural productions are listed as follows.

"Over a period of twenty-seven years Mr. Vinson has produced and managed varied industrial, horticultural and agricultural fairs and expositions in all parts of the United States. He has managed the nation wide tour of Sarah Bernhard, Sousa's

LIVESTOCK SHOW TO GET FINANCES FROM COUNTY

Permission To Exceed Five Per Cent Limitation On Expenditures Granted

The State Board of Equalization on Tuesday of this week granted San Mateo County's request to exceed the 5 per cent limitation by $50,000, permitting the county to participate in the Livestock Pavilion at Visitacion Valley. The plea to exceed the Riley Stewart tax law was made by Supervisor Al Witt of Daly City, who explained the benefits to the County by their expenditure.

The project already has assurance of state and federal financial assistance and is considered a work relief project, employing several hundred men during construction, which will start in a few days.

Permission to exceed the State limitation for other purposes was also sought: $50,000 for unemployment relief, $60,000 for maintenance of the Community Hospital, $10,000 for the Sunnyvale Air Base contribution, and $30,000 for the county's share of the old age pension, which has been increased 20 per cent by recent state legislation.

The proposals have been taken under consideration by the State Board of Equalization, which body is expected to make a decision soon.

Final adoption of the county budget cannot definitely be made until that time.

UNCLE SAM TELLS OF WEALTH FROM MINES

By J. W. MARCHBANK
Pioneer in Frontier Mining Work

Officially we have learned some interesting facts about mining in Alaska; officially, because the information comes from the Department of the Interior through the Geogical Survey. In any consideration of a subject such as mining there must be some statistics, but the figures will be kept down to the minimum.

Mines in Alaska produced minerals worth $16,721,000 in 1934, as against $10,366,000 in 1933, and, furthermore, the total value of the mineral output of the Territory up north since 1880 is $680,316,000.

To get down to gold, in which we are especially concerned, it is learned that the output in the precious metal in 1934 was $16,007,000, as against $9,701,000 the year before. Here is an important note, however: the value for 1934 is computed at the new price of $35 a fine ounce, whereas the value for 1933 is computed at the old standard price of $20.67 a fine ounce.

It is pointed out by the federal government experts that numerous causes other than those connected directly with mining limited the output last year. It is maintained that Alaska, as well as most of the rest of the world, has not yet emerged from the depression that has deterred normal activities and discouraged the starting of new enterprises. Disturbances in the labor market also had the effect of holding back operations.

The output of gold from Alaska comes from both lode (hardrock) and placer mines. Last year the output was distributed between the two types in the proportion of about 44 to 56—$7,052,000 from lodes and $8,955,000 from placers. The proportion for the entire period that gold mining has been in progress in Alaska has been about 35 to 65.

The producing gold lodes are widely distributed through the Territory, but nearly 70 per cent of the output comes from southeastern Alaska, where accessibility to deep water routes of communication and other favorable conditions have permitted the mining of immense tonnages of low grade gold ore.

Now to placer mining, in which I am engaged. Hundreds of camps contributed to the output, with the mines in the Yukon Basin leading and those in the Seward Peninsula next. Nearly 75 per cent of the production of the Territory was mined by dredges. In fact, they produced gold to the value of $6,725,000.

The "handle" was about 10,445,000 cubic yards of gravel and the gold recovered was worth about 64.4 cents a cubic yard.

Word comes from the North there is much activity in the Forty Mile district. It is well known that the Forty Mile is the last of the four great placer districts on the continent. Dredges have been working at Nome, Fairbanks and Dawson for years, but the Forty Mile is hardly scratched.

J. B. Mertie, geologist in the Department of the Interior, states gold was discovered in the Forty Mile district in 1886. According to the Mertie report, the district is the oldest placer mining region in Alaska, but had stayed in a state of comparative neglect for many years. One of the handicaps to development of the district was lack of transportation facilities, but that drawback has been largely overcome by the use of tractors.

GREAT OUTING OF BUSINESS MEN ON AUGUST ELEVEN

Come Out To Oak Cove Park That Day For Time Of Your Existence

California is just one big playground. Summer resorts and vacation attractions are so numerous that those who have the time and the means to take advantage of them are at a loss to decide which will suit them best. But we who live in the fog belt are not long in deciding that what we most desire is sunshine, and so when we have time to ourselves, if it be only for a day, we look for a place where we may bask in the refreshing rays of the summer sun. Many of us have not the surplus of time or money to enable us to spend even a week or two at Monterey, or Santa Cruz, or at Yosemite, or in the high Sierra, so we must of necessity confine ourselves to week end trips, or a Sunday drive down the peninsula. It may be that a well planned picnic at one of the numerous parks in San Mateo County will be the most satisfying thing for us.

Oak Cove Park, near San Mateo, is right at our door, and this is the spot where our Daly City Merchants have decided to hold the greatest of all their annual basket picnics on Sunday, August 11, 1935. All possible preparations are being made by the various committees in charge to make this a happy occasion for those who have the good fortune to attend. Plenty of band and orchestra music will be provided. Plenty to eat and drink, and plenty of fresh air and sunshine will add to the pleasures of the day.

Let the people of Daly City remember the date, and go down there and meet old acquaintances and make new friends, and enjoy the pleasures of the occasion together.

You are again reminded that the place is Oak Cove Park; the time, Sunday, August 11. Place of meeting, City Hall, and at 9 a. m. All will be welcome; all are cordially invited.

TWO SONGBIRDS IN A GLORIOUS MUSICAL TREAT

"Naughty Marietta" Proves Most Exciting Musical Film of the Year

Music, romance, stirring drama and spectacle blend in one of the outstanding screen productions of the year in "Naughty Marietta," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's haunting screen transcription of Victor Herbert's masterpiece, showing at The Daly City Theatre on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, August 4, 5 and 6.

The charming music of the great composer, as sung by Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy playing the leading roles in the picture, is heard against a thundering background of drama. The settlement of Louisiana, pioneer struggles, the "Marriage Auction" of St. Louis of the old Creole days, the capture of the Casquette Girls by pirates, their rescue, and other gripping dramatic details are woven into a story that, aside from music, provides an epic of one of America's most romantic cities.

W. S. Van Dyke's direction injected many clever and artistic human interest touches into the vivid story of the French princess who, to escape a marriage of state, flees to the new colony of Louisiana, for an amazing romance with a British army captain.

Also "The Awakening of Jim Burke," with Jack Holt and Florence Rice.

POPULAR YOUNG GIRL IS BRIDE OF SAN FRANCISCAN

Miss Georgina Bennett And William More Kennedy Married In Brilliant Church Ceremony

On Saturday evening, of last week Miss Georgina Bennett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James R. Bennett of this city, became the bride of Mr. William More Kennedy of San Francisco. The ceremony was performed in the presence of a large gathering of relatives and friends by Rev. R. C. Stahl in Saint John's Presbyterian Church, Arguello boulevard and Lake street, San Francisco.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white satin with long train and lace veil and carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley, gardenias and barvadias.

Miss Georgina Cockburn, cousin of the bride, was maid of honor and wore a peach colored taffeta gown with accordion pleats, her hat matching the dress. She carried a bouquet of talisman roses and violas.

The Misses Rose Merlo, Viola Schauer, Mary O'Connell and Hermine Vujerich acted as bridesmaids and their gowns were of blue silk net. Each one carried a bouquet of Russell roses and yellow pansies.

The best man was Andrew Kennedy, brother of the groom.

Colin Bennett, brother of the bride, William Russell, Nephi Kuykendall and Henry Hinze acted as ushers.

After the wedding ceremony a reception was held in the Masonic Temple, Daly City, where the guests enjoyed dancing and a delicious buffet lunch.

The young couple left immediately after the reception on a trip to Canada, Lake Louise and Banff, and upon their return will reside in San Francisco.

MISS GEORGINA BENNETT

The bride has lived in Daly City all her life, attended our local schools and is a very popular member of the younger set.

COUNTY SCOUTS ARE TO ATTEND EAST JAMBOREE

San Mateo County will be well represented at the International Jamboree of Boy Scouts, opening August 20 in Washington, D. C., Scout Executive Edward Barrer has announced at Burlingame headquarters.

The Scout delegation to Washington from this county will be headed by Barrer, and will include thirteen members of various troops throughout the county. Accompanying the delegation will be Dr. J. C. McGovern, South San Francisco, widely known for his interest in Boy Scouts.

That this county will be so well represented at the International Jamboree is due in part, Barrer said, to the efforts of R. C. Stickle, South San Francisco, president of the Baden Kennel Club, who donated a fund so that two boys whose trip was in doubt might be able to join the delegation.

Stickle made this donation an outright gift to the San Mateo County Boy Scout Council, and suggested that the council use it as a revolving fund. He urged that the money be advanced to the two boys needing it this year to attend the Jamboree, then during the coming year the two boys, by their own efforts, earn enough money to pay it back to the Scout Council. In this way, he pointed out, it can be used from year to year to aid Scouts to attend similar affairs.

FIRST PICNIC IS GREAT SUCCESS

The first outing of the Daly City Rod and Gun Club was an outstanding success and adds another bright page to the list of Club doings. Memory of the day at Martin's Beach will linger long and pleasantly in the minds of those attending. Dancing races, games, etc., occupied the interest of the large crowd.

Following the fish dinner for which Martin's are famous, there were races for boys, girls, ladies, fat men and obese ladies. Outstanding was the race between Officer Reagan and Ernie Micco, which required three heats to decide. Officer Reagan finally won by some nose. "Bill" Grantham was crowned horse shoe champ after hours of pitching.

Our worthy President, "Sir Galahad" Bodien, was here, there and everywhere, helping the boys and girls with their pies in the contest, or distressed ladies across the hot sands. Secretary "Doc" Kost was there as usual. Look behind any camera, and sure enough you would find Doc. We look forward to the premiere showing of the films Doc made of the picnic.

Chairman Ed Moore as master of ceremonies performed in his usual competent manner.

The first prize, a beautiful surf rod and reel donated by "Our Mayor" was won by Brother Smith. Good luck "Smithy." May they all be big ones.

There are three prizes in the drawing, unclaimed numbers 04111, 04044 and 04064. Holders of these tickets please phone Mr. Ed Moore, Delaware 4929, and make claims.

Much credit is due to Messrs. Wheeler, Eunis, Rodriguez, Langford, Lawrence and Grantham for their untiring efforts in their many duties.

The Club, at present 105 strong, will shortly close its charter, so those desiring membership should hurry.

Our outing was the means of cementing the bond of friendship with our home town neighbors and brought us all a little closer together.

FIRE BOYS HAPPY ALSO TAXPAYERS

Laddies Are Given Bonus Checks In Time To Make It Sunny Monday

Happy smiles were the order of the day with the local fire boys Monday of this week.

Blue Monday was changed to a red letter day for them, on that day, for the men received their bonus checks for services rendered.

The firemen may be justly proud of their work and the low fire losses maintained throughout the past year as the result of their good work.

Volunteer firemen have fought fires here for the past twenty-seven years without compensation, until 1934, when a plan was put in effect whereby the members of the various stations received renumeration. A fund of $5000 was set aside to pay for all fire calls and the balance to be paid as a bonus to all members in proportion to services rendered. The plan of compensation for the firemen, which was put in effect a year ago is new so far as can be learned. It has evidently worked satisfactorily, efficiently and, above all, economically. The insurance rates have been reduced from time to time until they are now, practically the same as in San Francisco.

The city employes, though not paid from this fund, are nevertheless also regular firemen as part of their duties and subject to call for that purpose at all hours.

The fund of $5000 is less than would be necessary to keep one man on duty all hours of the day.

Two members from each station take First Aid Training each year. All members of Station No. 1 have received this training and that station is well equipped for the purpose in addition to fire fighting. This station responds to all alarms.

The following is the roster of the membership in the various stations:

Station No. 1 — L. Shaw, W. A. Banfield, W. H. Sunderland, D. Wood, C. Brown, M. Goldberg, G. McCloud, F. Shaw, J. Reardon, K. Peterson, G. Ciarlo, A. Dalton.

Station No. 2—E. Forsell, E. Goldkuhl Sr., C. Kenyon, F. Hanson, A. Rickmann, B. Leahy, E. Kennedy, R. Sanders, A. Harrison, J. Tweston, G. Ford, E. W. Goldkuhl Jr.

Station No. 3—J. Soares, H. Lorenz, J. Ferro, A. Green, P. Selmi, A. Lang, F. Wickersham, M. Herscourtz, O. Schramm, M. Johnson, L. Kennedy, C. Tacchi.

Station No. 4—G. Augustien, J. Lee, A. Vireno, A. Chesney, A. Hilton, A. Bodien, J. Fenstermacher, E. Cuneo, J. Guinn, J. Doyle, R. Foppiano, J. Coleman.

Station No. 5—G. Felsch, R. Anderson, C. Brady, C. F. Reinhardt Jr., R. Stacey, W. Spreckelmeyer, J. Fields, W. Bolger, J. Crosby, C. Haller, J. Albousky, C. F. Reinhardt Sr.

Station No. 6—E. Graziani, A. Conci, H. Lorenz, G. Benadetti, J. Callan, A. Silicani, P. Benassini, A. Benadetti, A. Stampanoni, Geo. Volkman, A. Gaggero.

OUR DALY CITY TANFORAN CLUB ENTERED IN THE OAKLAND LOOP

Home Town Baseball Club Gets Break Because Of Summer Superiority

One of the most interesting sporting affairs to be staged around the bay is the annual Oakland Semi-Pro Baseball Tournament.

It is considered an honor for any ball club to be accepted to play in this tournament.

For the first time in the history of this event, the Daly City baseball team has been honored by having its application officially accepted among the first batch of selections.

Twenty-one teams were definitely selected to start the tournament due to their excellent records during the summer. Daly City Tanforan, Tallant Tubbs, Boldeman Chocolates and the Thirtieth Infantry clubs were admitted because of their remarkable play this season.

Twenty-four teams will be in at the start. An elimination series is now in progress to select the other three entrants.

Among the twelve clubs that will scrap for places will be four from San Francisco—the Pacific Greyhounds, Golden State Meats, Tracey Smoke Shops and American Building Maintenance.

The tournament proper will start on Friday evening, August 23. Three games will be played each night, with five contests on Sunday, until a total of twenty-four games are played.

The grand prize will be $3500. This will be split among the finalists.

So, you see, we citizens of Daly City have something to be justly proud of in our own Daly City Tanforan baseball team.

All set! Go get 'em, boys! We're all behind you!

POPULAR CHIEF HAS NEW WATCH

On Tuesday of this week at noon Andrew P. Chesney was called to the rooms of the Board of Harbor Commissioners in the Ferry Building, supposedly to attend a meeting of the executive board of the Harbor Social and Beneficial Club.

Much to his surprise the room was crowded with more than fifty members of the organization. The president called the meeting to order and stated that he had learned that Andy Chesney, who had been president for the past two years, would be unable to be present at the next meeting, as he would be on his vacation, so he had called this meeting to perform a very agreeable task. He thereupon called on the past president to step forward, and presented him, on behalf of his fellow members, with a valuable wrist watch bearing the following inscriptio:n:

"Andy Chesney, past president Harbor Social Club, 5-23-35."

After recovering from his surprise, Andy was able only to hoarsely articulate that "it has been a pleasure to serve an organization composed of such a fine bunch of men."

WORKING FOR FREE TRIP TO CONVENTION

A well earned vacation is planned by Norma Anderson who has entered the contest for a trip to St. Louis to the National Legion convention in September.

Norma has served Daly City Unit No. 410 as sergeant at arms, chaplin and is the incoming first vice president.

To succeed in the contest requires a large number of votes, and whoever is in a position to render her any assistance will have the appreciation of the Membership of our Unit.

BIRTHDAY PARTY

Mrs. Chester Smith of Woodrow street was guest of honor at a surprise party ,given at her home, Friday evening, in honor of her twenty-first birthday.

GIRL RESERVES WIN ONCE MORE

Another exciting baseball game was played on the Big Basin diamond on Saturday of last week by the Girl Reserves of Daly City and the Camp Ayun Mapu from Los Angeles. The local girls came out on top by scoring 16 runs to 9. The southern girls played a good game of ball, but the "Daily Diers," so christened by R. Burghardt, sewed up the old ball game when they scored seven runs in the eight inning.

Mildred Wolf captained the winning team, besides pitching a good game.

After the game the girls were surprised by being treated to watermelon by their advisors, Mrs. Helen Overstreet and Mrs. Cora Ray. The treat was a reward for winning the contest.

The girls returned home on Sunday last after spending an enjoyable two weeks of hiking, swimming, and playing baseball at Big Basin State Park.

SYNOPSIS

Following his father's bitter criticism of his idle life, and the withdrawal of financial assistance, Hal Ireland, only son of a wealthy banker, finds himself practically without funds but with the promise of a situation in San Francisco, which city he must reach, from New York, within a definite time limit. He takes passage with a cross-country auto party on a "share expense" basis. With five other members of the party, an attractive girl, Barry Trafford; middle-aged Giles Kerrigan; Sister Anastasia, a nun; and an individual whom he instinctively dislikes, Martin Crack, he starts his journey. Barry's reticence annoys him. To Kerrigan he takes at once, but he is unable to shake off a feeling of uneasiness. He distrusts Crack, although finding his intimacy with Kerrigan ripening, and he makes a little progress with Barry.

CHAPTER IV

Thursday

Hal had some difficulty reaching his friend next morning, and it was nearly one when he brought Kerrigan down from their room to see what he'd got.

"Really ought to look at it first through an old snapshot negative," said Hal. "Your eyes do better if you take these things gradually."

It was a great locomotive of a car—a certain high erectness, the small hubs and the spindly spokes proclaiming venerability; but deep green and bright brass, the pale taupe of the upholstery, the miniature lamps beside the doors, with a little red star in each side-glass, made its venerability that of an aristocrat who could ignore the fickleness of styles. Kerrigan looked and his eyes softened affectionately.

"Shades of Dempsey and Willard," he breathed. "What is it? A Martin day-bomber without the wings?"

"Nineteen twenty-three," said Hal. "Belonged to the mother of one of the directors and never been driven over forty. Cared for like an only child. Look at that upholstery."

Kerrigan looked and stroked. "Kings ride on fabric less rich,' he said. "They left the engine in it, I s'pose. But why Texas license plates?"

"Only ones they had handy. Thought it'd be interesting to drive from Michigan to California with Texas plates and a New York driving license. But the motor's sweet—sweet's a nut."

The solid, multiple chunk of the closing door drew an exclamation of awe from Kerrigan. He said, "You don't think I'll be embarrassed, riding up so high?"

"You'll find you see more of the country," said Hal.

"Right over the heads of the crowds that gather: true, true. It's a wonder we're alive. Tell me more: how much does the museum want for it?"

"Three hundred. And the tires, look at the tires—made of rubber, they are, and practically new. And everything works: the speedometer, even the cigar lighter."

"What's the railing up on top? Widow's walk?"

"No, that's the laundry yard," said Hal. "Colonel, if I didn't know you so well, I'd almost think you were making fun of—of. . ."

"Chucho! there—y'see?" said Kerrigan. "You've gone and bought us a car and don't know what to call it. S'pose the others had come before it was named. The ignominy! We better go up and throw out a horn from the quart an old old dog-fancier left in my pocket this morning. Got to christen it."

"Drink?" said Hal. "At noon? Kerrigan, what d'you think I am?"

Kerrigan's eyes were merry. "Just about what you seem," he said, taking Hal's elbow and turning him round.

"Rasputin" had become the car's name by the time the travelers were ready to start. They were shown Rasputin in his timeless green-and-brass distinction. John smiled loftily, rocking back on his heels as if he were taking the air on the deck of his yacht; and Mrs. Pulsipher made a little exclamation of surprise, clasped her hands in front of her as if to be sure she wouldn't touch the paint, and gave Hal a look of interest and respect.

"Oh, it's elegant," she said. "Oh my, it's beautiful."

Barry and Sister Anastasia came up and Barry's look ran out to Hal in unguarded confidence. She came to his side to admire, and her low voice said, "Ah, it's a sweet old thing."

"Like it?" said Hal, showing her his pleasure.

"Mm," she said. "It'll be fun, won't it? And we can light the little carriage lamps sometimes, can't we?"

Hal chuckled at her more delightedly than he meant to. "Bet we can," he said. "And you shall have 'em—to keep—when we get there."

She looked at his lips, then up at his eyes—securely, expectantly, on the point of letting him pass another of the intangible defenses. But then she said only, "Why don't we start?"

"Because that miserable fella Crack isn't here," said Hal, and the brief confidence that had lain between their eyes lost itself.

Barry turned her back on the others, slipped her hand lightly inside Hal's arm, and he crooked it as they took a slow step or two away.

"How long do you think it should take to Los Angeles?" Barry asked him.

Hal returned the gravity of her eyes, all the while conscious of the casual resting of her hand on his arm, as if sensation paused throughout his body except just there where she touched him. And he wasn't sure he wholly matched her casualness as he said: "I hadn't figured it closely. It's about twenty-five hundred miles. Six days would be fairly brisk. Why, Barry? Do you want to hurry?"

Her look coolly disavowed any plea for herself. "You won't say anything if I tell you why Sister Anastasia"—her low mention of it was quite as lyric, tender, as the nun's had been—"is going to the Coast. She has a brother—at the Santa Barbara mission. He's dying. He wants her there before he dies—to forgive him for something wrong he thinks he did to her a long time ago. She's so patient, so good, so—humble isn't the word, because that sometimes means things not always brave and fine. She wouldn't say anything to you, but it's so much to her. I'm sure she hasn't heard anything for a long time. She doesn't know whether he's dead now."

Hal wanted to keep her hand touching his arm until he found the remark that would open some small slit of intimacy in her thoughtful, faintly anxious look. But all he said was, "D—n that Crack."

She watched him an instant longer, as if she expected him to say something else. Then she looked down at his mouth: her hand slipped from his arm and she turned round.

And d—n me, too, he said to himself, for letting that minute get away from me. What is it comes over you, Ireland, you yokel?

Lunch was not only eaten but digested, the luggage was all up on the widow's walk under a spanking new tarpaulin, and still Crack hadn't come. A high clock somewhere round the corner struck four times. Hal, squatting on Rasputin's roof, murmured down to Kerrigan, "H—l with him. Let's leave his bag and his fare and shove off."

"Had to Telegraph New York. Business. The Answer Was Slow Comin' Back."

Casually Barry said, "I don't think that'd be fair—to leave him, do you?"

"Why not?" said Hal. "If we make a couple of hundred miles before bedtime, we might be one night less on the road."

Conviction backed up Barry's casual looking at Kerrigan, and Hal's obstinacy rose.

"But suppose—" Barry began, and Kerrigan interrupted, "Here he comes."

Barry lifted Doc under her arm and got into the car without hurry, as if her stand about Crack hadn't really mattered to her. Hal vaulted to the pavement as Crack came up, and said to him, "Any day this week, young fella. Where the devil have you been?"

Crack flushed. "Awfully sorry," he said. "I got delayed, awful sorry." His hand came from his jacket pocket and he dropped his look modestly to watch the golf-ball fall to the pavement and bounce up to his hand again. Then, as if Hal were the only one to share an understanding of the ways of the world, he said, "Had to telegraph New York. Business. The answer was slow comin' back."

He wasn't as young as he superficially looked, Hal decided: it wasn't only his old-fashioned air—straight-brushed hair and jacket buttoned high to the small opening—that gave him maturity. And whatever bemused his light, drowsy eyes remained private to them not wholly through shyness. Telegraph New York on business and wait for an answer. . . .

It went through Hal's mind quickly and vividly, like something he had thought of before and forgotten, and there was no pause before he said, "Get in. Your bag's up."

Crack looked up at the rack, then along the length of the car, immune to hurry.

"Nice car," he said shyly, as if he knew something about it that Hal didn't.

They had gone 20 miles westward when Pulsipher gave a lost wail of dismay. "That man—tha—that man."

"Good Gad, sir, what man?" asked Kerrigan.

"He's not here," John said, his desperation rising. "We left him behind. That driver. That Miller. Our fares."

All previous discussion of the matter—of Miller's dismissal and Hal's possession of the fares—had flown past John's ears, it turned out. And as Kerrigan explained it, among eager oh's and ah's of understanding, Hal became aware that he had undertaken responsibility of a sort here. Where, forty-eight hours ago, he hadn't given a Continental whether any of them got anywhere or not, he was now being trusted to land them all in Los Angeles safe, soon, and at no further expense. It gave him an odd feeling near the pit of his stomach—not to be defined at all—before he forgot it.

Dusk came early because of the shredded-cotton comforter of cloud low under the sky; and when they turned south at Coldwater for the Indiana border there was a warm rain-smelling breeze. It was dark when they got to Fort Wayne, and while they were at supper there was a splatter of rain flew at the window.

It was agreed to push on a little farther, giving the weather of night a chance to make up its mind. And promptly it made up its mind to drench water down upon the world.

A pair of brilliant headlights moved toward them through the dark rain: a truck and trailer, enormous, with wide toplights and a line of little green crystals along its side. Hal eased the accelerator farther, bending forward to keep track of the road's edge. Then, made startling as physical assault for all its quiet, Crack's whisper sounded behind him: "Stop it—brakes: easy!" There was nothing to see—nothing; but Hal gave the brake-pedal intermittent touches, cursing the groundless authority in that whisper as he did it. The headlights thundered past, and there in the rain-streaked glare close ahead, a figure in a gleaming poncho rode a bicycle. Hal swung aside for him, feeling a confused emptiness hold his chest for an instant, telling himself he was finished with that uneasy premonition, that sense of portent. He partly turned his head to ask Crack, "How the deuce did you see him?" Crack didn't answer at once; after a little, his whisper came, drowsing again in shy satisfaction: "I—I just sorta—saw him."

It was near ten o'clock when they came to Huntington and they would have been ready to spend the night there even if, at the first corner, they had not seen a white sign proclaim "Tourists" on the lawn of an old house. The cheerful, untidy young woman told Kerrigan in loud surprise that she had two double rooms and three singles and failed to keep entirely calm before the coincidence that these accommodations would fit them. With the luggage down and in, Hal managed to divert her mind to thoughts of where the nearest garage was—one where he might find a mechanic and a grease gun.

"I'll be right back," Hal said to Kerrigan. "See that everybody gets settled and book an early call—five-thirty, say."

But he wasn't right back. The elderly night-man at the garage found everything pretty dry and was delighted to have some one to talk to. Hal got away in just under an hour. The rain had stopped; the air was refreshed, good, almost cool, and the waning moon rode silent over the last hurried shreds of cloud. Hal found himself possessed of a juvenile eagerness to get back to the house—an eagerness out of all proportion to the chances of Barry's being up, out of proportion to the importance of any slight scene of challenge and adroitness that might be between them if she were.

He tried the door and found it locked. A dim figure came toward the net-curtained window, and Hal had to put down a quick resurgence of excitement. The door swung timidly open and the untidy young woman's stage whisper scraped round its edge: "They're all in bed. I waited up for you. I'll just lock up and show you where your room is. I was telling Daddy how lucky it was you all could just fit, some of you married and all. Daddy's a great one for talking. You'll see him in the morning. He likes strangers. Oh no, but you're going so early, aren't you, you won't see him." And so on halfway up the stairs, where she suddenly interrupted herself to hiss a harsh "Shhhhh" at Hal.

There was a low light over the landing. Eyebrows raised, head nodding, she stabbed her finger several times at the first door. "Good night," she whispered loudly, like a conspirator.

Hal wished he weren't so wide awake; he'd be sorry in the morning. He opened the door gently, hoping Kerrigan was too deeply asleep to be disturbed. But the light from the street lamp, striking upward on the white ceiling, revealed a broad and unoccupied double bed against the wall. Good, thought Hal: I'll read. He pressed the door shut with less care, shot the bolt under his hand, and found a light switch on the wall at first stroke. The light clicked on, and only then he heard a breath quickly caught behind him in the room. He turned, and Barry's blue eyes, with a gleaming rim of wet along each lower lid, were wide and anxious on him.

Migrates Easily

Home to the coyote is wherever he digs his den. He migrates easily and upon slight provocation. Coyotes multiply rapidly. The litters are large, averaging five to seven puppies, which look much like young German police dogs. With the coyote's adaptability, shrewdness, boldness, and ability to multiply, it is possible they may eventually inhabit the entire United States.

CALIFORNIA
News of the Week

Looks as if California will be paid her Civil War claim against the federal government. The Senate has approved this state's claim of $468,145.

"The Chief," outstanding pioneer of the modern West, has been laid to rest at Glendale. He is William Mulholland, 79, who solved Los Angeles' water problem as head engineer of the 240-mile-long Owens River aqueduct.

General Plutarcho Elias Calles, once president of and still a power in Mexico, was interviewed while visiting San Diego. He believed Tamaulipas peasants had grounds for revolt because of high taxes and property seizures. Mexicans use direct methods, even when seeking tax reductions.

A dream of 60 years, a series of irrigation, power, and flood control dams in the San Joaquin and Sacramento Valleys, will start materializing this fall. Federal funds totaling $20,000,000 have been appropriated for the first year's work. Seventy-five hundred men will be employed.

Sprays and ordinary insect-killing methods were ineffective in destroying black widow spiders which insisted on nesting underneath a group of picnic tables in Sylvan Park, Redlands. Finally the city employed blow-torches, which destroyed eggs, nests and mature offenders.

At least one Californian will witness at first-hand the impending Italian-Ethiopian slaughter-fest. San Francisco's Miss Muriel Holt has offered her services to Emperor Haile Selassie as a nurse or "even to fight." Her love of adventuer has taken her all over the world as a nurse.

Welcome word that California taxpayers will be saved $170,000 comes from Sacramento. The state printing plant will print 425,000 geographies for California schools. Cost of the job will be $170,000 less than if the books were printed in the East, as has been the custom in the past.

Nine-thousand chain stores throughout California are uniting in an effort to push referendum plans to obliterate the new chain-store tax before it has a chance to become effective. Petitions calling for a referendum must be filed with the secretary of state by September 14. Otherwise the law will become effective the next day.

The first mechanical bird, result of Department of Commerce experiments, has successfully tried out its wings at Los Angeles. The tailless monoplane is built to sell for $1200, will travel at 110 miles an hour and gets 13 miles to a gallon of gas. The remarkably stable ship is one of several being constructed with the idea of putting America "on wings."

Another California court has turned thumbs down on another law. Oakland's Superior Judge Quinn has issued an order restraining state, county, and city officials from enforcing the Alcoholic Beverage Control Act adopted by the Legislature June 22. The court upheld the Electrical Products Corporation contention that the act is illegal because it confiscates property without due process of law.

The lower San Joaquin Valley has been invaded by hordes of tarnished plant bugs, about the size of a grain of wheat. For two nights Porterville street lights were turned out to ward off the plague of odiferous insects which have been making streets and sidewalks slippery. The bugs have a bite worse than that of a mosquito.

Despite a greater number of auto tourists and more travel on highways, California's auto deaths for the first five months in 1935 were fewer than for the corresponding 1934 period. A total of 1,010 had been killed in this state up to June 1. A drive against drunk and reckless motorists by courts and highway patrolmen has aided the reduction.

A California Forestry Medical Corps, with a personnel of 1,000 doctors, has been formed. The doctors, located in various parts of the state, have volunteered their services in giving first aid to men injured fighting forest fires.

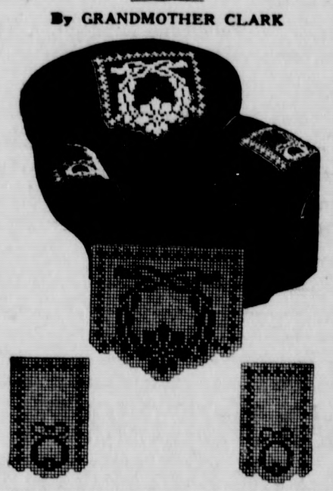
Over 15,000 of the 30,000 Filipinos in California are expected to leave the country in a few months to return to their native land. The repatriation act recently signed by President Roosevelt in which $900,000 has been appropriated, will make it possible for them to return to the Philippines without cost. Thousands of applications for the trip have already been made. Unemployed Filipinos are the most interested.

Miss Elizabeth Sadlier, 21, Sacramento elementary school secretary, has been visiting her grandmother in England. When she returns to her classes this fall she will be able to tell her pupils how it feels to be presented to the king and queen of England.

The ocean wasn't big enough for the freighter Calmar and the Japanese freighter Koryu Maru. They collided 20 miles off San Francisco's Golden Gate in a night fog. No one was hurt. Both boats were damaged, the Yankee freighter seriously.

"WREATH DESIGN" FOR CHAIR BACK

By GRANDMOTHER CLARK



Your grandmother crocheted chair backs, and now this generation is doing the same thing. Chair backs and arm rests are strictly modern. When you enter a room the chair with crocheted set attracts your attention first. It is distinctive and really looks good. The wreath shown above is made in the large filet stitch; shows up more lacy and the work is completed in less time. Other designs in chair backs have been shown in past editions, and judging from the response for directions how to make them we feel sure this design will bring equally large requests. The home needleworkers know what to make to improve home decorations.

Instructions and black and white diagram how to make this set will be mailed upon receipt of 10c. If you want the complete package No. 2505 containing sufficient cream Mountain Craft cotton, crochet hook, directions and diagram, send this department 40c and you will receive it by mail.

Rouses Sleepy Drivers

Automobile drivers who fall asleep at the wheel will be awakened and their car stopped if they have equipped it with a device just introduced in Germany. According to report from Hamburg the device consists of a false rim or covering for the steering wheel which is connected by electric wires with the horn and ignition and arranged in such a manner that the removal of the pressure of the driver's hand on the rim will instantly sound the horn and shut off the ignition. The operation is based on the assumption that drowsiness in the driver relaxes the muscles of the hands on the wheel. A switch is provided to shut off the device in case it is not needed.

STEEL INDUSTRY SHIFTS

The geographic center of ingot capacity of the steel industry in the United States is in Crawford county, Ohio, north and west of the town of Crestline, 150 miles west of Pittsburgh, according to a calculation made by the American Iron and Steel institute. Crestline has only two small iron foundries.

The great concentration of capacity in Pennsylvania and eastern Ohio is balanced by the capacity on the Pacific coast, some 2,500 miles westward, and by the mills in the Chicago district.

Since 1874, the earliest year for which the institute finds records available, the center of the steel industry has moved steadily toward the West. Sixty years ago it was 30 miles northwest of Harrisburg, Pa.—Kansas City Star.

EXPERT SAYS GOLD ALWAYS WILL STAY PRIMARY MONEY

Claim Made Metal Will Be Revalued to Standardize World Currency

After a lengthy discussion of many controversial matters which would be of little interest to our readers Sidney Norman concludes his recent article in the Vancouver Sun as follows:

To set things right, here's our confession of faith:

We believe in the theory of metallic backing for currency as the only acceptable, readily understandable method of regulating barter and trade.

We believe that the world will always adhere to that basis of currency.

We believe that production of gold is entirely inadequate to take care of the tremendously increased trade of the world, and

We therefore believe that gold, which will always remain the primary currency metal by reason of its physical properties and world-wide acceptance as ultimate value, must be reinforced by its old ally, silver, which is still the base of currency for almost half the world.

More than that, we firmly believe that lack of metallic backing for currency is the root of most of the evils from which the world now suffers and that both gold and silver must be largely revalued upward before we can hope to emerge from chaos.

We believe that before we are through, gold will be revalued to $82.68, of four times its former standard value, and that silver will be remonetized in the ratio of 16 to 1, or $5.16 an ounce.

Even then the monetary stock of gold in the world will be worth but 47,000 million dollars and the visible silver, estimated at eight billion ounces, worth another 40,000 million, or grand total of 87,000 million.

Sounds like an utterly incomprehensible amount, doesn't it?

And so it is.

But the public debts of the world have already amounted to an altogether unthinkable sum.

The League of Nations places public debts at 400,000 million.

Let's take that uncountable sum to reckon by.

With metallic backing of 87,000 million, debts would still be almost five times greater.

World annual income from gold and silver at the four-time price and at present production levels would total $3250 million—$2250 million for gold and 1000 million for silver.

Assume average interest rate of 3 per cent upon world's debts and we arrive at 12,000 million as the annual wage.

At the hoisted price of both metals, we should have bu tenough annual income from that source to pay less than 1 per cent interest; it would still take up nearly four years to meet annual interest at 3 per cent.

Chimerical, eh?

Don't be too sure!

Remember how the noted revaluation of gold to $35 was pooh-poohed by the vested interests?

Neither the price of gold or of silver is God-given or inviolate.

In themselves they are worthless and they both remain so till adapted to the uses of man in the evolution of civilization.

So brothers in the mining game, hold on to your hats!

We are off to world wide recovery through proper use of that which you produce and which has been proven indispensible in handling the compliexies of modern civilization.

You are in the finest business of all and the world is now beginning to recognize that fact.

Watch the Generator

Keep an eye on the generator charging rate if the car is fitted with radio.

Many a motorist forgets that he uses the receiver a large part of the time when the car is standing, which represents a steady drain on the battery with nothing being put back into it.

Advancing the charging rate gives the generator more of a chance to make up the loss when the engine is in operation.

SAN JOSE CHOSEN FOR CONVENTION

The board of managers of the California Congress of Parents and Teachers held the first meeting of the new administrative year at the Sir Francis Drake Hotel, San Francisco. Mrs. C. H. Turner of Redondo Beach, state president, presided at all sessions.

San Jose was selected by the board as the convention city for 1936 and the week from April 26 to May 1 selected as the time. Convention committee chairmen were appointed by Mrs. Turner. Mrs. E. K. Strong of Stanford University, is general chairman and Mrs. Ralph E. Sanders of San Jose is chairman of local arrangements. Stanford University and Santa Clara College have offered to entertain the delegates during convention week.

Mrs. Charles McIntosh of Richmond was appointed chairman of safety, the only vacancy on the board to be filled. Mrs. George H. Schuyler of Pacific Grove was changed from the chairmanship of character education to that of study groups, and Mrs. Pearl Sandifur of North Hollywood, former chairman of safety, was appointed chairman of character education.

In keeping with the Congress' program for recreation and conservation of natural resources, the board voted to request the govenor of California to veto Senate Bill No. 398 which permits the drilling for oil on tide lands.

Governor Merriam was also asked to veto Assembly Bill 1382 which sets up the same requirements for the dismissal of probationary teachers as for permanent teachers.

Senate Bills 961 and 962 were approved an action taken to ask the governor to sign them. These bills set an age limit for teachers and it is believed this will tend toward the goal of better teaching for the children of California. Assembly Bill 794, which provides a more adequate retirement for teachers ,is in line with the educational platform of the congress and the board asked the governor to sign this bill also.

Mrs Turner will attend the semi-annual meeting of the board of managers of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers in Rapid City, South Dakota, September 17 to 19. While in the East she will represent the California Congress at the National Recreation Conference to be held in Chicago the last week in September.

Miss Gladys M. Nevenzel, assistant professor of Home Economics, San Jose State College, was a guest of the state board and spoke of the program of consumer education recently adopted by the congress. The state department of education has outlined several units of study for use in parent-teacher groups. The California congress is co-operating with the California Home Economics Association in the development of a statewide study of the subject.

Mrs. Roy A. Pratt of San Francisco, third vice-president and director of extension, was appointed chairman of a committee to study the matter of fathers' council. Other memebrs are Harley W. Lyon, Pasadena, state chairman of fathers' councils; Mrs. L. S. Rounsavelle, Los Aneles; Mrs. Mark F. Jones, South Pasadena; Mrs. Walter Knapp, Merced; Mrs. L. K. Beever, Oakland; Mrs. Fred D. Bethard, San Diego; Mrs. W. R. Goddard, Los Anegles; Mrs. B. C. Clark, Sutter Creek.

Because of the increasing interest in life memberships, the state chairman, Mrs. W. J. Gerrish of Oakland, was authorized to purchase another cup to be awarded annually on a different basis from the one which was recently won by the Seventeenth District. In the past the cup has been awarded to the district securing the largest percentage of life memberships based on total district membership. The new cup will be awarded the district securing the largest number of life memberships regardless of total district membership. All funds derived from the sale of life memberships are placed in the student loan revolving fund.

Twenty-one new units have been accepted into congress membership. They were reported organized since the last board meeting in San Diego and have brought an increase of 405 members to the state organization. The associations and their districts are: Horace Mann, Beverly Hills, first district; Daniel Freeman, Inglewood, first district; Glendale Junior College, first; Coulterville and Greeley Hills, eighth district; Alpine Union, ninth; Rosedale, Paradise, Rockefeller, Sierra City and Alleghany, thirteenth district; Laurel Annex, sixteenth; Bryte, nineteenth; Lincoln Senior High, tenth.

San Diego Council continues to furnish hostesses for the California Congress exhibit at the International Exposition and reports that at the close of last week 724 visitors had registered at the booth.

Mrs. Walter Knapp of Merced was elected by the district presidents to act as chairman of the president's group. Mrs. Charles Aggen of Somis was elected secretary. District presidents are members of the state board by virtue of their position as district presidents. New presidents in attendance were: Mrs. Joseph E. Morcombe, San Francisco, second district; Mrs. George F. McCormack, Sacramento, third; Mrs. Luther Wool, San Jose, sixth; Mrs. Carl Nair, Arvin, seventh; Mrs. F. O. Smith, Lodi, eighth; Mrs. Fred D. Bethard, San Diego, ninth; Mrs. Alta Baldwin, Oroville, thirteenth; Mrs. Charles L. Poulsen, Lompoc, fifteenth; Mrs. L. K. Beaver, Oakland ,sixteenth; Mrs. Charles A. Hicks, Vallejo, eighteenth; Mrs. Ed. T. McGowan, Marysville, nineteenth; Mrs. F. C. Goodale, Pacific Grove, twentieth; Mrs. A. M. Drury, Porterville, twenty-first; Mrs. J. W. Stimson, Corona, twenty-third; Mrs. J. W. Lundy, Pismo Beach, twenty-fourth.

HAVE NEW BUSINESS EXTENSION OFFICIAL

Ira H. Potter, formerly president of the Bank of South San Francisco, has joined the staff of the Bank of America as a member of the Business Extension Department, it has been announced by L. M. Giannini, president.

Potter is widely known in banking and livestock circles. He was associated with the Swift packing interests for more than twenty years, and served as president of that organization's San Francisco Cattle Loan Company.

Previously, Potter was vice president of the St. Joseph Stockyards Bank and the St. Joseph Cattle Loan Company of Missouri.

For many years Potter has been active in the public affairs of South San Francisco and of San Mateo County. He was one of the organizers of the South San Francisco Community Chest and served as president of that organization.

SOME QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Some Little Known Matters That Should Prove of General Interest

(By Maude Larue Ives)

Question: How do time and season differ on the planet Jupiter?

Answer: Jupiter turns on its axis once in nine hours and fifty-five minutes, so its day is less than one-half the length of our day. Its year, however, is nearly as long as twelve of our years. Since its axis is but slightly inclined to the plane of its orbit, change of season on Jupiter must be slight.

Question: What is Kaaba or Caaba?

Answer: The most sacred shrine of Mohammedanism, toward which Mussulmans turn their faces in prayer. It is an irregular cube-shaped, flat-roofed building, in the center of the Great Mosque at Mecca. In the northeast corner is set the famous "black stone." This stone is of irregular oval shape, about seven inches in diameter, and is probably of meteoric origin. When Mohammed returned triumphantly to Mecca, he destroyed all the idols found in the Kaaba, which had fallen into pagan use, but spared the "black stone," which has since been held in extreme reveneration by all Moslems.

ART BUYERS TURN TO STATE FAIR FOR CALIFORNIA WORKS

Because California State Fair visitors want to take home paintings which strike their fancy in the annual art exhibit, exhibitors will again be permitted to sell their works this year.

The state fair art gallery in the past has been the means of bringing the creations of California artists to the attention of thousands of people who are unable to attend the metropolitan exhibits.

Entries for the coming fair will close on August 10. A jury of selection will then choose the canvases which will be placed in the gallery for the opening of the fair on August 31.

SAN ANSELMO TEAM DEFEATS DALY CITY CLUB

Substituting Pitcher Batted Freely—Injured Players Are Sorely Missed

(By Al Gould)

The Daly City Tanforan baseball club traveled to San Anselmo, Sunday afternoon, to be taken into camp by the San Anselmo Merchant's baseball nine by the score of 9 to 6.

This defeat, the second that has been handed our local nine in their sixteen games, was directly due to the poor pitching and slovenly base running of Speed Luke, on whom Manager Martin was forced to rest his hopes in the absence of Lola Petrocchi, who is enjoying his annual vacation.

Another loss that was deeply felt by the local club, in addition to the indifferent twirling, was the absence of several of the regular players.

The play by play report of the game will show the absence of "Lady Luck" in our boys' favor; otherwise, the breaks, to be truthful, were in favor of the Merchants.

FIRST INNING

Daly City—Kirby singled to right center. Carrasco sacrificed, Quinn to Sullivan. Maloney hit a hot grounder at Quinn, who was unable to handle it safely, Maloney being credited with an infield hit, scoring Kirby. Vasquez flied to Benjeman. Nelder at bat. Maloney out stealing, Volkman to Quinn. Two hits, one run, no errors.

San Anselmo—Quinn walked, Benjeman walked. Tremain popped to Kondeff. Volkman singled to left, scoring Quinn and sending Benjeman to third. Travers singled to left, scoring Benjeman. Murphy walked, filling the bases. Sullivan flied to Hawley in deep right, Volkman scoring after the catch. Sousa popped to Luke. Two hits, three runs, no errors.

SECOND INNING

Daly City—Nelder hit a home run to deep center. Hawley flied to Sousa. Albrecht flied to Benjeman. Kondeff fanned. One hit, one run, no errors.

San Anselmo—Franchini fanned. Quinn flied to Hawley. Benjeman singled to left. Tremain at bat, Benjeman out stealing, Kondeff to Carrasco. One hit, no runs, no errors.

THIRD INNING

Daly City—Luke fanned. Kirby singled to third. Carrasco singled to center, sending Kirby to third; on the throw in Kirby scored and Carrasco went to second when no one covered the throw. Maloney fanned. Vasquez singled o center, scoring Carrasco. Nelder fanned. Three hits, two runs, no errors.

San Anselmo—Tremain singled to deep short, Vasquez making a brilliant stop, but was unable to make the play. Volkman at bat. Tremain stole second, and when no one covered Kondeff's perfect peg he went to third. Volkman singled to center, scoring Tremain. Travers flied to Hawley. Murphy fanned. Sullivan safe when Carrasco bungled his grounder. Sousa out, Carrasco to Nelder. Two hits, one run, one error.

FOURTH INNING

Daly City—Hawley walked. Albrecht doubled to left; Hawley out at third when he stopped, then started again, Travers to Benjeman to Tremain. Kondeff fanned. Luke out, Quinn to Sullivan. One hit, no run, no errors.

San Anselmo—Franchini tripled to left. Vasquez pulled one on Franchini, when, on receiving the throw in from Maloney, he made Franchini believe he lost the ball, Franchini starting for home. Vasquez threw to Kirby, who dropped the ball, allowing Franchini to score on the error. Quinn fanned. Benjeman out, Vasquez to Nelder. Tremain doubled to right. Volkman hit a high foul fly behind first base, Nelder making a brilliant catch. Two hits, one run, one error.

FIFTH INNING

Daly City—Kirby popped to Franchini. Carrasco singled to center. Malonely hit into a double play, Franchini to Benjeman to Sullivan. One hit, no runs, no errors.

San Anselmo—Travers tripled to deep center. Murphy singled to left, scoring Travers. Sullivan sacrificed, Luke to Nelder. Sousa singled to deep short, Vasquez knocking it down while on the dead run, holding Murphy at third and Sousa on first. Franchini flied to Albrecht, who made a wonderful throw to the plate, having Murphy nipped by at least ten feet, when again the breaks went against the local team as the ball hit a small rock and caromed off Kondeff's glove, Sousa going to third. Quinn out, Carrasco to Nelder. Three hits, three runs, no errors.

SIXTH INNING

Daly City—Vasquez walked. Nelder singled to right. Hawley forced Nelder at second, Franchini to Benjeman. Albrecht flied to Murphy, Vasquez scoring after the catch. Kondeff popped to Sullivan. One hit, one run, no errors.

San Anselmo—Benjeman flied to Albrecht. Tremain singled to third, but was out trying to reach second, Nelder to Carrasco. Volkman walked. Travers at bat. Volkman stole second when Luke threw one in the dirt, which Kondeff was unable to get away in time. Travers doubled to right center, scoring Volkman. Murphy lined to Carrasco. Two hits, one run, no errors.

SEVENTH INNING

Daly City—Luke out Benjeman to Sullivan. Kirby singled to center. Carrasco forced Kirby at second, Benjeman to Quinn. Maloney at bat. Carrasco stole second. Maloney fanned. One hit, no runs, no errors.

San Anselmo—Sullivan flied to Carrasco. Sousa out, Kirby to Nelder. Franchini flied to Albrecht. No hits, no runs, no errors.

EIGHTH INNING

Daly City—Vasquez singled to left center. Nelder popped to Volkman. Hawley popped to Benjeman. Albrecht singled to center, and when Murphy let the ball get by him Vasquez scored and Albrecht went to third. Kondeff flied to Murphy. Two hits, one run, one error.

San Anselmo—Quinn safe when Hawley and Albrecht collided on his fly, the runner taking second. Benjeman lined to Vasquez, who leaped into the air and made a brilliant one hand catch. Tremain safe when Kirby delayed the throw to first. Volkman forced Tremain at second, Vasquez to Carrasco. Travers singled to center, scoring Quinn. Murphy walked, filling the bases. Sullivan fanned. One hit, one run, one error.

NINTH INNING

Daly City—Luke fanned. Kirby was called out on strikes by the umpire. Carrasco walked. Maloney singled through the infield. Vasquez flied to Travers. One hit, no runs, no errors.

WEEKLY BULLETIN

By Chief A. P. Chesney

FIRE PREVENTION

Each year sees progress and improvements in the various fire departments throughout the country. The method of fighting fires is being improved on daily, but still the huge losses continue through the carelessness of the general public. The only way to offset this carelessness or ignorance is through fire prevention education.

That education must be of the adult as well as children. This education should check the fires that arise from ignorance, and there would be less carelessness if the people were properly acquainted with the possible result of their acts.

Fire prevention means the elimination, or preventing, the construction of all conditions by which fire can originate, and providing for the quick extinguishment of fires that may occur.

Fire invariably originates through a combination of circumstances, so manifestly clear that exercise of common sense would devoid virtually all possibility of its occurrence.

In the elimination of this combination fires do not start, but in the efforts for prevention it must be borne in mind the large attributed human elements of carelessness, indifference and neglect, a combination of near criminalty, which can be offset only by individual responsibility.

Know Your Traffic Laws

Ignorance is sometimes bliss, but not when it comes to state traffic laws and local ordinances. Ignorance of the law excuses no driver, either legally or morally, for violation which results in an automobile smashup.

It is every driver's duty to know and to obey all city and state traffic laws. Moreover, such knowledge is just about as essential to your safety as the actual mechanics of driving.

Certain temporary conditions often call for special traffic regulations, and these should also be observed rigidly.

If you plan a trip through neighboring states where the laws may be slightly different from those in your own, familarize yourself with the regulations at your very first opportunity.

CUPID OUT OF LUCK AS STATE FAIR EXHIBITOR

Cupid wants to show at the California State Fair starting August 31, but has been turned down.

A San Francisco couple has proposed they be given a public wedding in front of the grandstand, but Secretary-Manager Charles W. Paine has said his usual "No." Similar requests have been made annually for several years past.

Ignition Trouble

Ignition wiring trouble usually can be traced to short circuits, grounds, open circuits, and poor connections.

These faults can result from oil and water soaked insulation, from damaged insulation caused by rubbing of wires against metallic parts of the car, and from vibration.

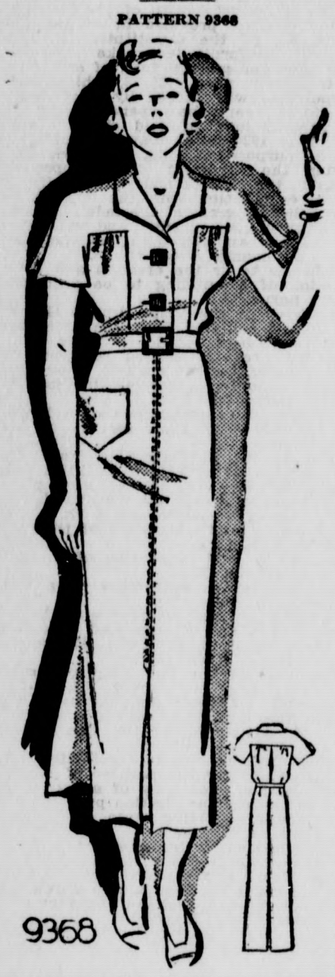
Action in Every Line of This One

PATTERN 9368



Everyone you know—everywhere you go! — Action — Action — Action! The natural expression of youth and good health. Even our clothes are "built for action" these days and here's one that just can't wait to get going. You just know you're "going places" in the fashion world with the free stride the front and back skirt pleat give you. The simple yoke miraculously becomes an action pleated sleeve and anyone can see what subtle flattery is gathered into that bodice. A proper set-up for your summer wardrobe would be one of striped shirting, another in washable pastel sports silk. The frock is just as appropriate for street and office wear as for sports.

Pattern 9368 may be ordered only in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 3¾ yards 36-inch fabric.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, the STYLE NUMBER and SIZE.

Complete, diagrammed sew chart included.

Send your order to Sewing Circle Pattern Department, 232 West Eighteenth street, New York.

Mike—What's the idea of wearing a mourning band on your left leg, Pat?

Pat—Me mother has passed away.

Mike—But why on your leg instead of your arm?

Pat—Well, she was me stepmother.

Uncommon Sense

If you can get a vacation, use it. Go somewhere.

Time Out

It may not be farther away than the next town, but at least that is somewhere.

If you can afford the money and the time, go to Europe, or South America of preferably across the American continent.

See people who have different manners and customs than yours.

They may be strange and surprising, but it is useful to know that there are other ways than your own, and that some of them may be very good ways.

If you can't go any long distance away, get as far from your job as you can.

Don't be like the laborer who, given a week off with pay, stood around and watched his friends toiling at their jobs, and was content to think that for a time at least he didn't have to wield a pick and shovel.

Meet as many people as you can. Talk to them. Get their ideas about things.

* * * * * * *

Our bodies often need a change. So do our minds.

We get into ruts without knowing it. If we stay there they get deeper and harder to get out of.

Find out what other people think. Talk politics, if you can talk politics intelligently.

That will lead to wider knowledge of the affairs of the country you live and work in, and will make you a more discriminating voter when election day comes 'round.

Everybody needs a perspective on life.

It helps to meet people you have never known or seen before.

* * * * * * *

You know what it means to get muscle bound. Getting mind-bound and soul-bound is far worse.

Somebody, Pope, I think, said something to the effect that the proper study of mankind is man.

Take up that study. You will find it more interesting than many of the books you read just to while away the time.

We all need change, variety. We all need as wide an acquaintanceship as we can get.

You'll never get more than three or four real friends, the kind that will "go through."

But you can make many congenial acquaintances, who will talk and argue with you.

Step out among them. You'll be glad you did.

* * * * * * *

I am not sure that we are very deeply indebted to Columbus.

We're All Debtors

In the first place he went forth on a private venture.

In the second, the Western continent would have been discovered very soon anyway.

As the Englishman said after he had traveled across the American continent—"It wasn't so remarkable that Columbus found America. But it would have been remarkable if he had missed it."

The men to whom the world is most in debt are first the men who preserved the Bible for posterity; after that the long line of inventors who have increased happiness by promoting physical comfort and convenience.

Of these James Watt, Stephenson, Samuel F. B. Morse, Edison and Marconi are especially prominent.

None of these stumbled on their inventions. They worked them out carefully and scientifically. And they all had in mind the fact that if they succeeded they would be benefitting mankind.

* * * * * * *

I give all credit to the Wright brothers, but Professor Langley and a number of others had experimented with flight before them.

Langley, had he lived a little later when light gasoline motors were in use, would have succeeded.

Indeed, the Wrights, not at all jealous of his fame, took the Langley ship, equipped it with a modern engine and made a flight with it.

You and I sit down and take all these modern conveniences, and think nothing at all about them, wondering sometimes why progress is not more rapid than it is, even if people can now travel from New York to Los Angeles on a regular liner almost between sunset and sundown.

* * * * * * *

Why don't we all do our part in progress?

Some of us are lazy, some of us know nothing of mechanics, some of us do not even think about it.

Meanwhile if you have some disease that twenty years ago would have released you from earthly troubles, you can find a surgeon who will prolong your life, while other medical men are working to prevent many illnesses that our great-grandfathers took lying down, and stayed down afterward.

This is not intended to be a sermon, but I really think that it would make us a little more kindly and a litle more unselfish if we remembered all that has been done for us by devoted men and women, and remembered it without any hope of future favors from other people who may do as much for us.

All that we can do to keep up our end is to be grateful and appreciative and a little more zealous in our own efforts to help our brothers and sisters.

Housewife's Idea Box

To Launder Cretonnes

If carefully and properly handled, cretonne drapes and covers can be laundered to look like new. Wash them in good soapsuds. Do not rub them too much. For the final rinsing use water in which you have boiled rice. They will, when dry and ironed, have their natural stiffness.

Keen competition and spectacular performance in all divisions of the San Mateo County National Horse Show beginning tomorrow for one week at the Menlo Circus Club, can be expected when the Pacific Coast's show champions meet in the tanbark ring with the top show horses from a number of the nation's outstanding stables.

During their stay they took in the opening day of the Salinas Rodeo—Great! They also visited all towns and points of interest in that "neck of the woods." Had a grand time in a frolic with the "ocean waves."

However, it seems nobody (even the office force) were aware of our trip, so from now on we will "pipe down" as to our prowess. We assume our absence was not felt for the reason that no mention was made of it in either issue of the Record published while we were away.

Thanks, boys, thanks a lot!

THIS OLD WORLD CAN BE MADE TO LOOK GOOD TO ALL

What a sorry place this old world would be to live in if everyone thought only of getting, but never of giving. "It is more blessed to give than to receive" would never be realized by any of us. Long faces, tight pocket books—each person for himself. Never a smile or a friendly greeting and to spend a nickel to help someone else would simply never happen.

The folks here in Daly City aren't living in that sort of a world. They are not only expressing friendliness and sympathy verbally, but they are buying tickets for Officer Heim's benefit dance. Our little city is coming to the rescue in a fine, big way. Let's keep up the good work fellows! Crowd the spacious Tanforan Club House. Everybody go, and you'll have a grand time.

The Daly City Municipal Employes are giving this benefit dance for Officer Edmond L. Heim of the Daly City Police Department, now convalescing at his home. It will probably be a long time before he can again use the hand, so badly injured, so everybody should buy a ticket for the dance, and if you have already done your "four bits" worth, keep on boosting the affair so someone else will spend their half dollar, and remember to keep the date open for Saturday evening, September 7.

If nobody smiled and nobody cheered and nobody helped us along;
If each every minute looked after himself and good things all went to the strong;
If nobody cared just a little for you, and
nobody thought about me,
And we stood all alone to the battle of life, what a dreary old world it would be!
Life is sweet just because of the friends we have made and the things which in common we share;
We want to live on, not because of ourselves, but because of the people who care;
It's giving and doing for somebody else—
on that all life's splendor depends,
And the joy of this world, when you've summed it all up, is found in the making of friends.

—Edgar A. Guest.

Band, Russian Symphony Orchestra and Pavlowa and Mordkin, the Russian Ballet stars. He successfully conducted ten large flower shows in the Cleveland, Ohio, auditorium, and three large building shows in New York and Chicago. Since 1932 Mr. Vinson has managed the California Flower Festivals at San Leandro, California. All of his shows have been artistic and financial successes."

Mr. Vinson has already started the machinery moving and soon will launch the queen contest and general activity in the promotion of the agricultural, vegetable and implement features of the show.

Acting under instructions from the Board of Supervisors, William C. McCarthy, County Director of Publicity, communicated with the San Diego Exposition directors, relative to a special San Mateo County Day at the fair; said day to be featured during the last weeks of September. Arrangements are also being made for a San Mateo County Week at our own county booth, which is located in the State Building, on the exposition grounds. During that week a special display of flowers and musical numbers will be featured, in addition to the showing of our motion picture entitled "California's Picturesque Peninsula."

Every man, woman and child in the county is urged to unite in "County Pride" in helping make our first festival a success.

COASTSIDE ROAD WILL BE REBUILT

Coastside residents of San Mateo County will again have rail facilities after many years.

The old Ocean Shore line, which at one time served the district, is being completely rebuilt. Surveys and right of way details have all been completed. Grading equipment is reconstructing the old roadbed, preparatory to the laying of the new rails.

The northern terminal will be at Third and Townsend, San Francisco. The line will touch Colma, Thornton Station, Muscle Rock, Tunitas and San Gregorio and terminate at Santa Cruz.

Construction and equipment is estimated to cost $3,000,000.

H. W. Cole, lumberman, is a director of the firm undertaking the project, which will be rushed to completion as soon as possible.

Litigation over right of way caused considerable delay, but is practically settled.
